When the air conditioner in your 2002 Mazda Protege starts blowing hot air, you likely have a freon leak. Recharging the freon in your AC system is an inexpensive and easy first step to restoring the cooling capacity of your A/C system. Most refrigerants include a leak sealer that will seal small leaks in addition to filling the R134a refrigerant.

My 2002 mazda protege has the a/c switch flicker problem. Especially when the car is very hot from sitting in the sun, the a/c light (and compressor) flickers and goes out. Apparently its common, but there's no consensus on the solution. I pulled off the dash panel and removed the connectors but they look okay.
