

Digital Lessons for Digital Learners

A contest by the Consortium for Digital Learning for turning your lesson plans into digital books

Publishing has gone digital and it's never been easier for teachers to create high quality and engaging lesson plans for their students. The ability to distribute digital instructional content has been simplified through new delivery systems like the Consortium for Digital Learning (CDL) K12 iTunes U and Alaska Learning Network (AKLN). From these digital distribution centers, your multimedia-rich, place-based/theme-based lesson plans can be delivered directly to student iPads in any school classroom across Alaska.
